

Austin Newcomers Welcome Mat

November 2018 ★ Vol. 71, No. 5

Celebrate the beginning of "The Giving Season"

Newcomers Luncheon - November 14

Thanksgiving will soon be upon us. The Austin Newcomers Board would like to give special thanks for all our members with a special November luncheon.

RSVP, then come to the beautiful River Place Country Club to be feted. You'll pay the usual $30, but the Club is treating each and every one of you who attends to an especially delicious, "upgraded" meal to let you know how much we appreciate your friendship and contributions to ANC.

In addition to giving thanks for good food and good friends, we're extending our "Giving Season" concept with a unique program. Representatives from some of Austin's most popular charities will be on hand before and during lunch to share information about Austin charities (Assistance League, Pets Alive, Toys for Tots, the Austin Food Bank, "I live here/I give here" and others). There will be lots of variety, and we guarantee there'll be no pressure to "give." A couple of collection barrels, though, will be available for your convenience should anyone want to donate canned food or toys.

This is an info-only learning opportunity. Our thinking is that people new to Austin might like a little information about local opportunities to volunteer or donate during the holiday season.

Come enjoy a special feast at our November luncheon and learn about opportunities for generosity that will warm your heart.

This year, the ball will be held at Moody Theater and YOU have a chance to attend!

Fellow Newcomers.

There is crispness in the air and Thanksgiving is just around the corner, so today I sat down to update my "thankful" list.

The following important facets of my life made my 2018 "thankful" list:

- * Austin Newcomers Club and the many dear friends I've made; we've spent untold fun-filled hours participating in the various social activities the Club offers monthly.
- * The Austin Newcomer volunteers who make this organization so dynamic by sharing their time, their talents, and by graciously opening their homes for social events.
- * My family certainly makes my "thankful" list, and I'm grateful for the times we are together making memories and sharing traditions. I hope you all have special family traditions that you'll be able to engage in during the holidays. However, since most of us are in a new home, we Newcomers can also have the pleasure of starting new traditions with new friends.

Looking at this "thankful" list amazes me. All this abundance, and yet... what's still missing for me in Austin is a way to give back. If you, too, have been wanting to find a charitable organization to support and haven't known where to look, our luncheon program this month should be perfect for you. We've asked guest speakers from a cross-section of Austin charities to come tell us exactly what their groups do and how we might volunteer and or contribute, therefore, helping all of us (including the charities) achieve our goals.

If you are traveling this Thanksgiving, we'll miss you at lunch, be careful and hurry home to Austin where fun activities are planned for you.

Valerie

Daytrippers

When: Thursday, November 8

Where: Castroville, TX

Cost: Pay individually for lunch, fees, etc.

RSVP: By Monday, November 5, 10 a.m. to susi.spies@gmail.com.

Details: Ooh, la, la! It's said that tiny Castroville (located about an hour and a half drive from Austin) bears an uncanny resemblance to a quaint European village infused with Texas lore. Reason? Established in 1844 by colonists from the Alsace region of northeastern France, modern Castroville still retains vestiges of the charming half-timbered, slope-roofed, thatch-work buildings that Strasbourg and its neighboring towns in France are famous for. And if the buildings of Castroville still seem distinctively Alsatian, wait till you taste the food!

Sound good? Then come away with us on a Daytrippers outing to Castroville and its European charms. We'll start at Haby's Alsatian Bakery for stollen or Gugelhupf, then move on to recently renovated Landmark Inn (a state historic site) and St Louis Catholic Church of absolutely soaring Flying Buttress fame. We'll visit the classic Steinbach Haus and walk around the downtown historic neighborhood. We'll shop Rainbow Antiques (housed in an old theater) and maybe visit Driuk's Meat Market if anyone wants to sample a unique Alsatian steak tartare known as "Parisa." A stop n' shop in an old stone house occupied by Castroville Pottery and a late lunch in a wonderfully cozy old Alsatian restaurant should finish off our day nicely.

CASTROVILLE

The Little Alsace of Texas

And yes, there will be carpools. We'll arrange them once you've all RSVP'd "oui" and we find out what direction you all will be coming from.
